

Aspirience Home Care Improves Your Quality of Life

Tom Wiest - CEO
Aspirience Home Care

“Our home care aims to enable people to remain at home in surroundings that are comfortable to them.”

“Can we help people with health concerns aspire to a better life?” When Tom Wiest and his family asked this question, the result was the founding of Aspirience Home Care. This Shakopee-based business provides services to people who need help with activities of daily living and health-related functions through Personal Care Assistants.

The realization of the need for a company like Aspirience started many years ago when Tom’s mother was diagnosed with Alzheimer’s disease. Tom’s father did a great job taking care of her in the early stages. However, this destructive disease eventually took its toll on him and the rest of the family. The inevitable happened and his mother was put in a nursing home.

His mother went from having his dad take care of her at home, in a setting in which she was most comfortable, right into a full-time nursing home. That’s when Tom and the family started looking at the options and determined to create a home-care company that was guided by very specific principles. Tom, founder and CEO of Aspirience Home Care says, “Our mission is to empower all caregivers to help home-care clients dream more, do more and be more. Our vision is to turn aspirations into experiences. Hence, our company name Aspirience. We understand that we are in the ‘people’ business, like a good neighbor taking care of a friend.”

Aspirience Home Care provides services to people of all ages who need help with activities of daily living and health-related functions through Personal Care Assistants (PCAs). They offer hourly, daily or weekly service, 365 days per year to a wide variety of patients from children to seniors, including the convalescing, disabled persons and anyone else who needs help with daily living activities. Aspirience Home Care will help anyone who needs help with routine activities of daily living so that they can live at home.

Tom comments, “Our home care aims to enable people to remain at home in surroundings that are comfortable to them, rather than use institutional-based care facilities. Caregivers visit clients in their own home to help with many different daily tasks such as getting up, going to bed, dressing, toileting, personal hygiene, some household tasks, shopping, cooking, supervision of medication and more.” “We help out with the daily routine of things you and I take for granted every day.”

Aspirience Home Care services those whose needs are described as Activities of Daily Living (ADL) and Instrumental Activities of Daily Living (IADL). ADL refers to basic activities that reflect the patient’s capacity for self-care. IADL refers to more advanced daily activities that enables the client to live independently in the community. Aspirience Home Care is licensed and serves the entire state of Minnesota as well.

Aspirience’s Chief Nursing Officer constructs a personalized care plan designed to fit the needs of the individual. These Care-Giving Services are then provided by Personal Care Assistants who are carefully recruited and trained. Aspirience guarantees its services, and those of its PCAs, who are all bonded, insured and tested. The Chief Nursing Officer monitors each PCA’s activities to ensure compliance with client care plans.
